15 Foolproof Ways to Be Rid of Your Bad Neighbour?

In this anthology of all-new crime & mystery stories 15 crime writers set out their secret for a peaceful neighbourhood

LONDON, UK, March 24th—Hardly a week goes by that we do not get news of a neighbour dispute going nastily sour. Asked how their characters would deal with the problem of a bad neighbour, 15 crime writers set out 15 all-new scenarios and 15 inventive ways of solving the problem—using lethal force.

Murderous stories come from bestselling and award-winning authors such as Hilary Davidson, Steve Hockensmith, Robert Lopresti, Marilyn Todd, L. C. Tyler and Dave Zeltserman, with poignant titles that include: "One of Us Is Dying", "Vengeance Takes a Holiday", "The Woman Who Cried Cat", "Murder, She Chiselled" and "Woops!" These and other all-new stories are gathered together by Jack Calverley under the title Death of a Bad Neighbour - Revenge is Criminal.

Jack Calverley hosted the CrimeCityCentral podcast once a week for just over two years and over the course of 115 podcast episodes of crime and mystery stories has developed an eye (and ear) for what will appeal to the established consumer of crime fiction as well as to newcomers to the genre.

Death of the Bad Neighbour - Revenge is Criminal is published worldwide on April 1st in paperback and eBook and has a dedicated website at www.doabn.com.
